Kitchen symphony

A symphony is the composition of a full orchestra, with no soloists. It is therefore considered the epitome of orchestral musical excellence, featuring the extreme richness of sound and the enhanced specificities of the various families of instruments.

A harmonious arrangement of elements that recalls the balance of our kitchens: each component is designed to offer the best of its functions and capabilities, to result in an outstanding collective performance. This company can also be imagined as an orchestra where the role of each player is enhanced in terms of its own specificities, integrating and coordinating with the rest of the group to produce a perfect fusion of sounds.

Aimed at the international market, Silko is rooted in Italy, the country with the largest number of UNESCO world heritage sites, somewhere accustomed to the beauty and enhancement of product design in any sector.

It is therefore no surprise that since it was founded in 1980, the company has stood out for its attention to detail, quality of materials and originality of the solutions on offer.

It was clear how our professional modular kitchens made entirely of stainless steel were different from the others and were based on a kind of innate predisposition to excellence. A hallmark that has enabled the company to quickly develop special, customized projects for prestigious international customers.

These days, Silko forms part of Ali Group, one of the most prominent businesses in the global market for catering equipment, made up of a network of companies spread across every continent, acting as an engine of innovation and as a guide in the process of international growth.

Streamlining and flexibility represent significant added value, as they simplify the management of business processes and help to keep up with changing market trends.

This is an agile company that offers a personalized response at every level, from individual customers to large restaurant chains. Silko is not only a manufacturing company; it is also a workshop for innovation and development, which can design and fully manage projects, as well as producing and supplying equipment and accessories.

Its ability to move at a fast pace has enabled the early identification of future trends and adaptation to change, using these as opportunities to create value.

We don't know what will save the world, or whether it will have to save itself, but we do know that beauty takes time, attention, care, and commitment. Because beauty is not only respect for certain aesthetic canons, but it is also an expression of an essence that can fulfill specific requirements.

Over the years, our experience has enabled us to introduce significant innovations in the design of our products, putting us at the vanguard of a new design culture. The result is industrial kitchens with attention to every detail, of high aesthetic value, made entirely of stainless steel, designed to be functional, easy to use, ergonomic and in harmony with the work of chefs and catering professionals.

The ability to listen is a gift that all musicians develop. If they then play in an orchestra, they must know how to listen to their instrument, checking the pitch and timing, but also the sounds produced by the other players around them.

That's why we like to define Silko as a company that knows how to "listen": to the in-house team working on the project, to the network of companies to which it belongs and, above all, to its customers, to whom it guarantees tailor-made and customized projects. This attention and expertise in coordination result in rapid, precise design and implementation processes, serving as further proof of the company's agility and responsiveness to customer requirements.

To keep up with emerging trends, you must always keep going. Constant research is required to offer the best solutions on the market, which can in each case be adapted to the needs of professionals in the sector. Our goal is to make out kitchens “sustainable” from every point of view.

Components such as the single work surface and advanced technologies make it possible to optimize productivity, improving the organization of work and offering the option to cook several dishes at the same time. Each of our projects is also inspired by principles of energy saving, to reduce the environmental impact of our products further and further. We now look ahead to the future with sensitivity and awareness, without ever neglecting the fact that we share the planet with 8 billion other people; added to all the others, every action can make a difference.

The performance is over, but the Silko symphony remains in the air.

The applause begins.
